Chiropractic is that science and art which utilizes the inherent recuperative powers of the body and the relationship between the musculo-skeletal structures and functions of the body, particularly of the spinal column and nervous system, in the restoration and maintenance of health.

— American Chiropractic Association

Dr. Thibodeau founded this office in 1976 with the goal of establishing a comprehensive chiropractic practice to care for patients of all ages.

Dr. Thibodeau attended Furman University in South Carolina and received her Chiropractic degree from the Palmer College of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa. She is a third-generation chiropractor.

Dr. Thibodeau is a member of the American Chiropractic Association, California Chiropractic Association, Foundation of Chiropractic Education and Research, American Chiropractic Association Council on Nutrition, American Public Health Association and the American Association of Nutritional Consultants.

THE ACTIVATOR METHOD

Dr. Thibodeau specializes in the Activator Method, a low-force chiropractic adjustment technique that restores spinal balance and joint alignment with safety and comfort to the patient. The Activator Method is a system of body mechanics and a technique emphasizing methodology which teaches where, when, and when not to adjust in re-establishing and maintaining the normal dynamic, anatomical and physiological relationships of the human body.

"I specialize in this technique because I feel it is the most comprehensive and specific full-spine technique in chiropractic today – and can be easily given to any size or age person without difficulty or discomfort."

– Dr. Paige Thibodeau

The adjustment is given by means of an Activator, a small hand-held instrument that is very specific in its contact, providing a comfortable, exact and effective adjustment for the patient.
